Millage rate to be 12.25

Council raises city taxes to 10-mill limit

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

City taxes will go up for Romulus residents in the 1980-81 fiscal year, following action by the City Council last week, and one councilman is unhappy with how the city's millage rate was raised.

By a slim 4-3 vote, with two abstentions, council approved a hike in the city's millage rate from 11.85 mills to 12.25 mills.

Voting for the increase were Councilmen Mary Ann Banks, Junior Block, Gerry Canejo and Richard Yeramian. Abstaining in the vote on the tax boost were councilmen Ray Cantrell and Jimmie Raspberry, while councilman Ed Rush voted against the motion.

During council discussion, it was explained that the city had not been levying its full 10 mills as authorized under the City Charter, but had been assessing residents at 9.6 mills.

That amount levied last year, plus 1.85 mills for debt retirement, and 0.40 mills for Peoples Community Hospital Authority (PCHA), brought the total city millage to 11.85 mills.

According to Clerk Leonard J. Folmar, Mayor William M. Oakley, in his budget recommendation this year, proposed levying the 0.40 mills for PCHA separately from that assessed for city operation and debt retirement.

Although it was explained that the 0.40 PCHA millage was "being added on top" of the millage levied for operation and debt retirement, the net effect is an increase in millage levied for city operation from last year's 9.6 mills to 10.0 mills.

Thursday, following the council session, Rush expressed sharp disagreement with increasing the city's millage rate by council action.

"Rather than vote in increased taxes by council action," he declared, "it would be better to tell the people what the city needs, say 2 or 3 mills, and let them vote on whether they want it or not."

Maintaining that Romulus is some $900,000 in deficit from last year, Rush said the city faces inevitable cutbacks in services and working hours for city employees.

"Let's face it," he said. "If people want services continued, such as weekly rubbish pickups, then there is no other way than to increase taxes.

"But let them decide, not council," he said.

Rush emphasized that Romulus taxpayers "are either for or against a tax increase" and that it was their majority decision that would decide the matter.

Rush said the 0.40 mills levied for PCHA, when added to a 6 percent property valuation increase recently assessed by Wayne County on Romulus, would boost taxes by about $74 for the owner of a house whose State Equalized Value is $20,000.

"The city is in financial trouble," Rush said. "If the people are to receive continued police services and others that they've become accustomed to, then we (city government) must explain the situation to them and let them decide if they want to pay higher taxes."

He said the state's Uniform Budget Act forbids deficit spending by any community and that Romulus' current shortage must be made up.

Three candidates vie for 2 ed board posts

One incumbent and two other candidates are seeking two 4-year seats on the Romulus Board of Education in the June 9 election.

Candidates are Mrs. Shirley Lombardi, board secretary, now finishing her first 4-year term; Richard Campbell, known locally for his active involvement with We the People; and Richard Zavodsky, an automotive engineer with Ford Motor Co.

The two open seats belong to Mrs. Lombardi and to Mrs. Margaret Cole, board treasurer, who is not seeking re-election.

Mrs. Lombardi, a secretary for the Wayne County Board of Public Works, is married and the mother of two grown daughters. She explained her reasons for running again. "I have been urged by some administration and school board members and friends to seek re-election. I had not planned to run again, but their indication of support changed my mind."

Mrs. Lombardi has served as a member of the Romulus Recreation Commission and on the Wayne County Election Scheduling Commission. She also served for a year on the Western Wayne Area Vocational Education Consortium, representing Romulus and Van Buren School districts.

She participated in the recent program to equalize student population at North and South Junior High Schools and is now serving as chairman for the 3-member school board committee to evaluate Romulus High School.

Campbell served on the local school board from April to July of 1978 when he was appointed to that body by Gov. William Milliken to fill one of four vacancies created by a recall. Following his brief stint on the school board, Campbell did not seek re-election.

His list of community endeavors include past president of Mt. Pleasant Elementary School PTA, past president of the Compensatory Education Parents Advisory Council, member of the Citizens Advisory Committee to the school board, member of the city Board of Appeals, and past president of Local 2130, American Federation of Government Employees.

Zavodsky, who is employed at the Ford Oakwood plant in Allen Park, ran for the Romulus school board in 1978, but was defeated.

In addition to working with the city's Beautification Committee, Zavodsky volunteers time as a referee and umpire for local adult and high school basketball and softball games. Last year, he worked as an umpire in the Class C finals of the state Amateur Softball Association.

Zavodsky said he has the endorsement of PM-1, a property management organization, as a qualified property manager. He now serves as treasurer of the Wellsley Townhouses in Romulus.

History in the making

The Gall Farm, located at 1214 Inkster Road, is the third site in the city to earn a historical designation. The farm, purchased by Frederick Gall in 1877, was designated as a centennial farm during ceremonies on Heritage Day, May 18. Planned by the Romulus Historical Society, the ceremony attracted several area dignitaries, as well as friends and family of the Galls and members of the historical society. house built in 1883, after the ceremony were Gloria Chandler (front row, from left), historical society treasurer; Ella A. Gall, widow of the late Alvin L. Gall farm becomes city's third historical landmark

The Gall Centennial Farm at 12124 Inkster Road, Romulus, was the center of activities for Heritage Day, May 18, in the City of Romulus.

The sun shone brightly for the program as friends and relatives of the Gall family and other local dignitaries gathered for a ceremony, designating the site as a Centennial Farm in the State of Michigan.

The third historical site in the city, Gall farm was purchased by Frederick Gall and his wife Wilhelmina in 1877. It has been owned and operated by the Gall family since that time.

The Frederick Gall family lived in a log cabin on the farm until the present white frame house was built in about 1883. All of their four children — Ervin, Norman, Margaret and Dorothy — still live in the area, and Norman and his wife Minna maintain and operate an orchard and tree nursery, called the Homestead Nursery, at the farm now.

Romulus Historical Society members Phyllis Savage and Genevieve Dugan registered guests attending the ceremony, while Pearl Varner, historical society president, served as mistress of ceremonies.

The dedication of the site as a centennial farm was held inside the Gall home, with the Rev. Leonard F. Weigel, retired pastor of St. Paul United Church of Christ of Taylor, providing the invocation.

A welcome was extended to the guests by Carl W. Morris, a member of the Michigan School Board Association and a 30-year member of the Romulus Board of Education. Romulus Mayor William Oakley did the honors in presenting a resolution, recognizing the centennial status of the farm, to Ella A. Gall, widow of the late Alvin L. Gall. Norman and Minna Gall, owners of the farm, accepted the historical marker for the site from Kenneth Krueger, vice-president of the Romulus Historical Society.

A small reception, with homemade cookies, coffee and punch, was hosted by the Galls for those in attendance after the ceremony.

Special guests at the ceremony, in addition to Mayor Oakley, were Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks, Councilman Richard Yeramian, longtime Romulus residents and educators Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Herzog of Lakeview, Mich., and former Romulus Township supervisor, Edmund Bizek Sr.

A community picnic at Elmer Johnson Park for city residents culminated the Heritage Day festivities.

2 charged in rape, robbery of duo

Accepting a ride from a stranger nearly cost a young teen-age couple their lives last week.

A 16-year-old Dearborn girl and her 17-year-old Marine Corps companion managed to escape from their tormentors after a terrifying night that eventually led to the arrest of two men.

Tommy Lee Hess, 30, of Ypsilanti and Thomas Dwight Carter, 31, of Taylor were arrested and charged with seven counts of criminal sexual assault and two counts of robbery.

Hess and Carter appeared before Judge James E. Stone, 34th District Court in Romulus, and stood mute upon arraignment. The court entered pleas of not guilty for the defendants who were remanded to Wayne County Jail in lieu of $50,000 cash bond each.

Hess and Carter will reappear in court for their preliminary examination today (June 4).

According to Wayne County Sheriff's detectives Donald Cox and Louis Desson, the two victims were waiting for a bus at Inkster Road and Michigan Avenue in Inkster when a man in a car offered them a ride. The couple accepted the offer.

Instead of driving the two to Dearborn, the man instead drove to a service drive in the Inkster and Ecorse area where the second man, later identified as Carter, was waiting, police said.

Det. Cox said that the girl was sexually assaulted and the Marine was severely beaten by the defendants at this time, then ordered in a second vehicle. The defendants then drove to the Morton-Taylor and Yost areas in Van Buren Township where the girl again was repeatedly raped, according to police.

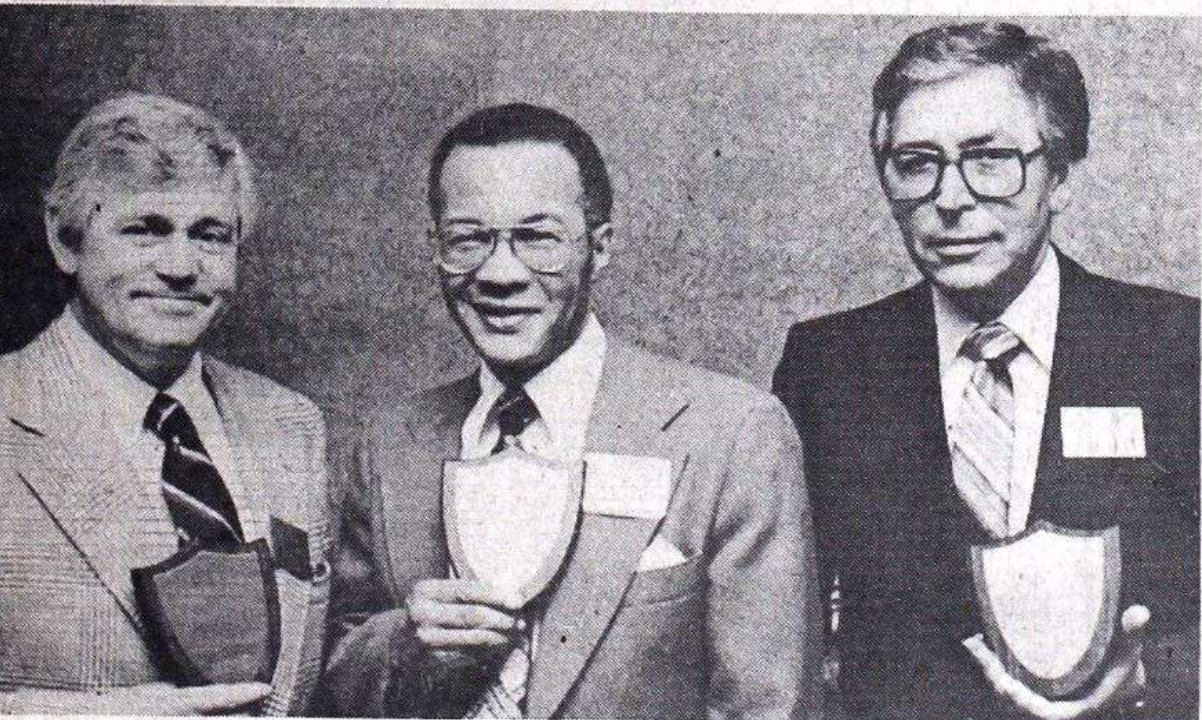

While one of the suspects and the girl were out of the vehicle, the Marine managed to shove the car into gear and started it moving down an incline where it got stuck in the mud. The girl managed to escape from her assailants, ran into a swampy region and hid.

"The girl knew they were looking for her, and she would submerge in the shallow water when she heard their voices," Det. Cox said. "The Marine escaped and telephoned for help."

"We managed to arrest these people because a partial license plate was left at the scene when the car was shifted into gear," Cox said.

There is a sidebar to all of this, according to Cox. Carter was arrested at his home in Lorain, Ohio, but Hess was picked up in Lorain, Ohio, at his father's home.

"The police in Lorain are out on strike," Cox said, "but when the chief of that city informed some of the striking officers about the severity of the crime, they were glad to pick up the defendant."

Huron voters face four propositions in school vote

Huron School District residents on Monday will be asked to vote on four proposals relating to millage and to choose two of six candidates running for the school board.

Proposition 1 seeks the approval of an 18.82-mill renewal levy for five years, which represents all but 3 mills of the total millage voted for operation of the school system.

School Supt. Curtis D. Bartz said passage of the 18.82-mill levy will permit the school district to maintain the same level of education as last year. Its defeat would be disastrous, he said.

Proposition 2 asks voter approval of a 2.10-mill increase for two years, with generated funds to be used to buy textbooks, teaching supplies, library books, and instructional equipment, hire a full-time librarian, recall of non-certified personnel and operation of a full extracurricular and athletic program.

Proposition 3, a 0.75-mill increase for two years, would be used to install new roofs on all five school buildings, including the administration building, and to repair heating equipment at the schools.

Proposition 4, seeks voter approval to levy the full school millage rate in 1980 without applying a reduction factor specified by the Headlee Amendment. The factor, said Ken Kubeck, business manager, is used when state equalized valuation (SEV) of school district property exceeds the current inflation rate. He explained the factor was not used last year because the SEV did not exceed the inflation rate at that time.

Two school board seats are up for grabs as Leo Kyko and Robert Lemieux, current board trustees, will not seek re-election.

United Methodists gather in Adrian, Mich.

Some 200 years of Sunday is being celebrated by United Methodists as they gather now through Saturday in Adrian for their Annual Conference sessions.

Bishop Edsel A. Ammons of Detroit brought the activities to order Tuesday in preparation for ordaining 13 elders and 20 deacons (26 men, 7 women) into the ministry of the church.

The chief executive of the denomination's Board of Discipleship, Dr. Melvin G. Talbert of Nashville, will be Conference Preacher on June 6 at 10 a.m. and on June 7 at 8 a.m. His work at the national level of the denomination is the development and strengthening of evangelism, stewardship, and worship ministries of the churches. Special offerings and celebrations will benefit the church's relief services as it marks the 40th anniversary of the United Methodist Committee On Relief (UMCOR).

Dr. Robert Boley, pastor of Adrian's First United Methodist Church, is the host pastor for the Conference, as he has for the past 5 years. Months of arrangements have been in the making to provide accommodations for the members, who come from the 521 churches in the vicinity of upper and eastern Michigan.

Changes and new developments in the church will be reported by delegates who represented this Conference at the international General Conference of the denomination held recently in Indianapolis. Led by Mrs. Jane Shairer of Dexter and Dr. Paul Blomquist of Port Huron, the 6 delegates will advise the conference of the decisions which will affect matters of ordination, finances, pensions, social principles, local church organization, and communications ministries.

A major matter will be the new $20 million fund to be raised over the next four years to develop and strengthen Ethnic Minority Local Churches. The Detroit Conference has been a leader in the nation in positive actions around this priority. Other matters referred from the General Conference will be the preparation for a "United Methodist Television Presence" and the "Bicentennial of American Methodism", two programs which will be developing over the next few years.

Mrs. Jan Albright, coloratura soprano of the Michigan Opera Theatre and a member of the Metropolitan United Methodist Church of Detroit, will bring a musical program to the Minister's Mates luncheon meeting at Adrian United Methodist Church at noon on Friday. The program and luncheon will follow an open house at the home of President and Mrs. Don Stanton of Adrian College which begins at 10:30 a.m. at 135 S. Madison.

At the conference, special recognition will be made of Dr. Keith Pohl, who has served 7 years at the post of editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate, the denomination's state-wide weekly newspaper. The Advocate has been a crusading voice for progress in the church and community for 107 years.

Pohl will move to the University

United Methodist Church in East Lansing after the conference session. His successor, Dr. Donn Doten, is moving from a 6-year pastorate at the same church.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4
Read 2 Corinthians 12:7-10

"(The Lord's) reply has been, 'My grace is enough for you; for where there weakness, my power is shown the more completely.' Therefore, I have cheerfully made up my mind to be proud of my weaknesses, because they mean a deeper experience of the power of Christ.'" (2 Corinthians 12:9 Phillips)

The summer of 1948 I was a lively 3-year-old until an attack of polio left me in a wheelchair. From the beginning, however, my parents taught me to emphasize my abilities, not my disabilities. When I left home for college, I was hurt to discover how many people are frightened or repelled by a physically handicapped person. I developed a negative attitude toward myself and my handicap until God enabled me to realize that He loves and accepts me just as I am.

I have many handicaps that are not physical: laziness, stubbornness, selfishness, and a hot temper. God has helped me begin to outgrow these disabilities and see my physical handicap as an opportunity to demonstrate to others how God can strengthen us if we open ourselves to His love.

PRAYER: Dear Lord, please help us recognize our handicaps and accept them as real parts of ourselves. Help us offer them up to Your healing grace, so that You may use our weaknesses to show the power of Your love. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: We are all weak until we open our hearts to the power of God's love.

Behind the scenes

Youngsters of Brownie Troop 522 of Halecreek Elementary School got to see more than the average traveler on their tour of Detroit Metropolitan Airport during Michigan Week festivities recently. After boarding buses at Romulus City Hall, the youngsters, along with other curious city residents, were provided with a tour of the aviation center, including the interior of an airplane, the customs section at the international building and a visit to the Host International flight kitchen, where baker Willie Revell, a 22-year employee of Host, shared a sweet treat with Kerri Smith, 6. — ANP photos by Chief Photographer Lothar Konietzko.

Council OKs moratorium on fireworks sale permits

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

The City of Romulus has slapped a moratorium on issuance of fireworks sale permits.

With Councilman Jimmie Raspberry abstaining, the City Council voted 6-0 to direct Clerk Leonard J. Folmar to cease issuing Class C permits for sale of fireworks within city limits.

Mayor William M. Oakley in discussion earlier had asked for a "consensus" from council members that no more fireworks sale permits be issued by the city. Later, he said the city should take a stand against issuing permits and, if contested, go to court to get the matter resolved.

The mayor said he would like to put a stop to Romulus having the reputation of being one of the only cities in this area that still permits the sale of fireworks.

In a memorandum to council, dated May 23, 1980, Fire Chief John Wilhide echoed the fact that Romulus is "...the only city in this area that permits the sale of fireworks."

The fire chief explained that this causes problems for neighboring communities whose residents shoot off fireworks purchased in Romulus. He called attention to enforcement of local ordinances against fireworks sales in Dearborn Heights, Dearborn, Taylor and Wayne.

Raspberry, prior to voting, said it was the mayor's duty to enforce all city and state laws and to follow the City Charter.

Considerable discussion centered on current state law, which permits sale of Class C fireworks (those deemed to be safe) and provisions of BOCA — Building Officials and Code Administrators — fire prevention code.

Charles Lowther, city attorney, and Wilhide differed sharply on differences between the two regulations. Lowther said both were the same except for sale of smoke cones under state law.

Wilhide contended that state law and BOCA, which he would like as a model for a new city ordinance, differ drastically on the amount of blasting agent permitted in fireworks.

"BOCA allows only 0.25 grams of blasting agent in fireworks, while state law permits 2.5 grams, or 10 times as much," he explained.

The Class C licenses issued now by Romulus follow provisions of state law and are not stringent enough, claimed the fire chief in his remarks to council.

There was a considerable amount of confusion during some 45 minutes of discussion before Councilman Ray Cantrell suggested that a moratorium be placed on further issuance of Class C fireworks permits.

Whether a new city ordinance is drafted along lines of the BOCA format as advocated by Wilhide will depend upon future action by council.

School board OKs additional cutbacks

Continuing its program of cutbacks, the Romulus Board of Education, last week eliminated and reduced additional services and personnel totalling $337,000.

Lastest action came on the heels of action taken by the board April 28 when it laid off 49 probationary teachers, saving the school district nearly a half million dollars.

Marvin Fischer, interim superintendent, said last week's cutbacks reduced the alternative education program by half and combined the administrative and secretarial portions of that program and the adult education program.

Under that move, the Headstart preschool program will be transferred from the old Romulus Elementary School to Mt. Pleasant Elementary School. Duties of supervisor of adult education and supervisor of Headstart were performed in the past by the same person. Headstart program will now be the responsibility of the Mt. Pleasant principal, Fischer explained.

The adult education program will be moved to Harrison Elementary School.

Also included in the board's action was:

— Elimination of three secondary school counselors, position of dean of students at Romulus High School, and supplementary assignments (department heads, class advisors, etc.), but excluding coaching positions;

— Elimination of a nurse, a social worker and a psychologist;

— Elimination of a keypunch employee at the business office;

— Reduction of position of audiovisual coordinator to half time;

— Approval for city of Romulus to assume the financial liability for school crossing guards, and for the school district and city to work together on the program.

Fischer said the board decided not to cutback or eliminate instrumental music in the elementary schools. Action on reducing the athletic programs in the junior and senior high schools was postponed until the board's June 9 session, at which time it will consider other alternatives, the superintendent said.

Four propositions to headline Huron school election ballot

Mrs. Jacqueline Dregansky, housewife; Mrs. Susan J. Helsel, employee of a local florist shop; Larry Lee O'Kelley, owner of an insurance agency in Westland and substitute teacher in the Huron school system; William G. Thomas, Romulus teacher; Gary R. Tobin, a cost analyst with Ford Motor Co.; and John W. Watson, also employed by Ford Motor Co.

Bartz explained that because the school district's SEV increases, it does not follow that more tax dollars will come rolling in as many people believe.

"Local tax dollars are subtracted from the Huron School District's state aid guarantee of $5,615,160, with Huron receiving the balance in state aid," explained the superintendent. "As local property values increase, state aid dollars decrease, with the total $5,615,160 remaining the same."

This means that the more tax dollars the school district receives, the less dollars it receives in state aid, he said.

Replying to the often asked question of "Why can't schools live within their means?" Bartz said, "By law, schools are required to have a balanced budget. Unfortunately, like any business, schools feel the increased costs of inflation."

Costs have risen substantially for school buses, hospitalization insurance has soared 55 percent in the last year, and textbooks have gone up by 27 percent over three years ago, he emphasized.

Also going up sharply, he said, are salaries, disability insurance, electricity, gasoline and teaching supplies.

Bartz also explained that the school district's accumulated deficit of $125,075 as of June 30, 1979 and the projected 1979-80 deficit of $460,166 have been eliminated by the 4.47-mill additional levy passed Dec. 10, 1979 by voters.

Since 1972, when the total school tax millage was 27.83 mills, it has risen gradually to its current 36.93 mills, mostly due to the ravages of inflation, he said.

School district residents who have questions they wish answered before the June 9 election are asked to call Bartz or Kubeck at the school board office, 782-2441, or any member of the school board.

Absentee voter ballots may be obtained from Mary McKinney, board secretary, at the administration building, 24820 Merriman Road, New Boston. No ballots will be issued after 5 p.m. Saturday.

School district residents can vote at three precincts — Precinct 1 at New Boston Elementary School, Precinct 2 at the Walt Fire Hall and Precinct 3 at the Huron Elementary School. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The superintendent also stressed that proposed tax increases may not cost some residents any extra dollars. For example, he said, if the total property tax on a dwelling (township tax bill) is more than 3.5 percent of household income, the owner is eligible for an income tax credit or rebate of 60 percent of the excess from the state of Michigan.

Senior citizens with a limited income may be able to get a 100 percent rebate or credit, he said. He urged residents with questions to call the administration building.

Cleanup kickoff

Romulus elected officials and Beautification Committee members proudly posed for a photo wearing their new beautification T-shirts emblazoned with the slogan: "Can It! Put Litter in its Place." They also held plastic litter bags with a pitch in message, that were donated to the cleanup effort by the U.S. Brewers Association, and distributed city-wide by Boy and Girl Scouts. This year's spring cleanup effort, the largest in the city's history,

50 students collect accolades

A total of 50 students in kindergarten through fifth grade received awards at the recent Audrey Dickelman-Riverside Science Fair, held at Riverside Elementary School in Huron School District.

Students entered 106 projects and displays in the science fair, named after Audrey Dickelman, former teacher at the school who died in 1970 from Hodgkin's disease.

The Riverside PTA, which sponsors the fair annually, acclaimed this year's show as the best ever held. Judges for the fair were Mrs. Marilyn Masson, substitute teacher; Glenn Dent, naturalist at Oakwood Metropark; and Kenneth Kubeck, business manager of the Huron School District and a former science teacher.

Students competed in three main categories — biological, chemical and physical. Winners were kindergarten, Andrea Knofske, first,

Blood supply running low

The need for blood increases during the summer. So before you leave on vacation the American Red Cross Blood Services of Southeastern Michigan urges the community to make an appointment to give blood.

"We are facing an increasing need for blood," said Dr. A. William Shafer, director of the Southeastern Michigan Red Cross Blood Services. "Our blood supplies are running low, and I urge you to come out and donate blood at one of our many bloodmobiles."

Nine hundred fifty to 1,000 pints of blood are needed each day to meet the needs of patients in more than 75 area hospitals. Anyone between the ages of 17 (with parental consent) and 66 and in good health can donate blood.

Make an appointment today to give blood at a regional donor center or during a scheduled bloodmobile visit in your area this month.

Donations are accepted at the Dearborn Donor Center, located in the Village Plaza, 23400 Michigan Avenue, Dearborn, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Friday, 2 to 8 p.m. Wednesday

Bakerman...

Donning white aprons and hats, first graders at Wick Elementary School in Romulus recently established and operated Little People's Perfect Pizza Production, a career education project. All "factory workers" wore a badge signifying what specific job in pizza preparation and baking they performed. The school's cook, Mrs. Kathy Bunyak, shows one of her baker helpers how to slide a tray of miniature pizzas into the commercial oven, while Marvin Fischer, interim superintendent, and "chairman of the board," demonstrates that the hand is the best way to roll out pizza dough to "dough rollers." Other factory management positions included principal Richard Goode, "plant manager;" teachers Annie Ellis, Millie Rivers and Sharon Popek, "superintendents;" and college student Don Gotham, "safety inspector." Students performed duties of dough rollers, pepperoni placers, sauce spreaders, cheese handlers, production control employees and bakers.

BC-BS Tel-Med has information on Reye's

Information on Reye's Syndrome, which took 17 young lives in Michigan last year, now is available by telephone from Tel-Med, a medical information service offered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan (BCBSM) and the Wayne County Medical Society.

The 3-minute tape recording on the mysterious disease is one of 330 tapes, written by physicians, which callers may hear by phoning (313) 393-1976.

Dr. Armen Shekerjian, BCBSM vice-president and medical director, said improved diagnosis and treatment has reduced the fatality rate for Reye's Syndrome from 40 percent to 12 percent in recent years.

"Parents, especially, should familiarize themselves with the symptoms of Reye's Syndrome because early recognition is the key to successful treatment," Dr. Shekerjian said. "While not a substitute for a physician's diagnosis, this tape can play a valuable role in helping parents know symptoms to watch out for."

Seventeen out of 67 confirmed cases were fatal in Michigan last year, while five of 40 have been fatal so far this year, he reported.

Tel-Med operators are on duty from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday. To hear the Reye's Syndrome tape, ask for tape number 5001.

Free folders listing subjects and tape numbers also are available by phoning Tel-Med.

Shekerjian said Reye's Syndrome occurs year round but appears most frequently in "flu" season — January through March — and is most common among infants to 18-year-olds. Usually, it follows a viral infection, especially flu or chicken pox, and occurs most frequently in the Midwest, including Michigan.

Symptoms may include persistent vomiting, listlessness, irritability, confusion, convulsions or delirium. It has no known cause or cure but treatment can control the effects before they become fatal, and was first observed in 1951 by Australian pathologist Dr. R.D.K. Reye.

Tel-Med has received more than a million calls since its inception in late 1976.

We'll remember

When members of the Romulus Greater Chamber of Commerce and other community Leaders gathered May 21, they paused to remember someone near and dear to them—Dr. Clarence J. Carpenter. The gathering, originally a part of Livelihood Day of the city's Michigan Week Observance, was renamed to Dr. Clarence J. Carpenter Day, in recognition of the doctor, who passed away May 12 at the age of 86. Present for a noon luncheon was Dr. Carpenter's widow, Mrs. Doris Carpenter, who accepted a bouquet of flowers from Chamber of Commerce President Gary Bingham.—ANP photos.

WHAT ABOUT MONUMENTS AND MARKERS?

Today granite stones or bronze plaques are the most common grave markers used. In times past, monuments have been made of marble, slate, or sandstone; but they proved unable to withstand weathering and are rarely used any more.

Granite comes in a variety of colors including black, gray, white, soft reds and shades in between. The beauty of the finest granite can be identified by the absence of discoloration and seams. Fine granite will have a uniformity of texture and color throughout.

The bronze plaque is the least expensive marker one can buy. Many cemeteries today allow only the bronze plaque, so it is important to know the regulations of the cemetery you have chosen.

All stones and plaques are considered a handcrafted product and the cost is dependent upon size, number of words, special borders or designs, type of floral vase and extras you may want. Installation of monuments and plaques is generally an additional charge.

Tentative accord would provide property tax relief

Legislative leaders and Gov. William Milliken reached tentative agreement recently on an $800 million property tax relief plan that would mean an average $350 savings for Michigan homeowners.

A 1.5 percent increase in the state's sales and use tax would make up for the lost revenue, but automatic increases in the personal income tax exemption and the property tax credit based on the inflation rate will result in a tax cut of more than $500 million over the next five years.

Republican pressure for the plan to include a significant tax reduction for Michigan citizens was successful when, after 20 hours of negotiation, House Republican Leader William R. Bryant offered the idea of indexing the two exemption figures. It was accepted by House and senate Democratic leaders and Governor.

The plan will be submitted to the legislature for a vote later this month or in early June, and if both houses approve it by a two-thirds vote, it will appear on the November ballot.

"This is an appealing and reasonable proposal which I am sure will gain the support of the people," Bryant said. "House Republicans repeatedly have stated that the people want a real tax cut, and they will have one with this plan. We felt a tax shift would not have sufficient appeal, and I'm very pleased with our final product."

"None of us want to severely cut an already critical budget, so the start of the tax cut had to be put off one year, but really will take hold after that."

Inflation has eroded the $1,500 personal exemption to the point where it is now worth only about $935 in 1973 dollars. By tying it and the property tax credit limit to the growth of the economy, Michigan citizens will realize very substantial savings.

Bryant explained that the tentative plan would:

- Exempt the first $6,500 in state equalized value of homes ($13,000 in actual value) and increase the exemption annually at the same rate a which the statewide value of residential property, excluding new construction, increases.

- Pay back local governments for lost property tax.

- Grant a flat $140 property tax credit for renters.

- Increase the sales tax to 5.5 percent from 4 percent.

- Exempt utility bills from the sales tax increase and phase out the sales tax on utility bills over a 4-year period.

- Index the personal exemption and the property tax credit.

- Exclude personal property in computing the increase in property values for "rollback" under the Headlee Amendment.

"The final item is an important one because personal property seldom increases in value at the same pace real property does, and the effect of the Headlee rollback provision, therefore, has been less than intended," Bryant said.

"But I think it's also important to note that the 4-year phase out of sales tax on utilities will put some decent progressivity into the tax structure. Utility prices have had huge increases and any tax on those bills obviously makes a big difference in paying for a vital service."

Bryant said that if the legislative plan is placed on the ballot, he expects it will gain more votes than any other property tax proposal.

"The Michigan electorate is thoughtful and fully capable of evaluating a number of complex contradictory proposals," he said. "It's becoming more clear to the public that the radical Tisch amendment is so full of critical problems that it just isn't reasonable and wouldn't even accomplish what its author says it would. People want relief, but they aren't willing to close down every university and mental health program in the state to get it."

"This tentative plan is a reasonable approach that recognizes the need for property tax relief and for a real tax cut."

Program helps seniors in gaining food stamps

A senior citizens center in Western Wayne County will be included in a massive food stamp outreach project being conducted in a cooperative venture of Gov. William Milliken's Nutrition Commission, the Wayne County Department of Social Services, the City of Detroit and various community agencies and organizations.

Senior citizens who think they may be eligible for food stamps may apply at Communities United For Action (CUFA) Sumpter Center, 2301 Sumpter, Belleville, June 11. Food stamp workers will be available from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Fifteen senior citizen centers throughout the county are scheduled for the 4-week project, which began May 19 and will run through June 12. Food stamp workers from the Wayne County Department of Social Services will take applications at each site. Applications will be processed and those persons deemed eligible will be certified to receive food stamps.

Detroit Councilwoman Maryann Mahaffey, chairman of the state Nutrition Commission, said the purpose of the outreach is to make senior citizens aware of the program and of their right to apply for food stamps. Speaking at a kick-off ceremony Mrs. Mahaffey added that placing workers at senior sites also makes it easier for them to apply for the program.

Because of their fixed incomes, senior citizens are among the groups hardest hit by the current high inflation, yet historically, she said.

At 'work'

Members of Rod Hanna's government class of Romulus Senior High School had a chance to be a part of government as they filled for Romulus city officials May 22, Education Day Day of the city's annual Michigan Week observance. A morning filled with meetings and a mock city council meeting kept the students busy, and a noon luncheon

NJH symphonic band receives No. 1 ranking

The Romulus North Junior High Symphonic Band "has pulled off an astonishing feat in the educational history of the Romulus Community Schools," said Richard Kruse, band director.

The Symphonic Band recorded a first division rating at the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association State Band Festival in Saline on May 3.

Not only did the North Symphonic Band receive a final first division rating, but it received a one rating from each of the four judges at the festival, Kruse said. This marks only the second time this feat has been achieved in the history of the Romulus School System," he added.

"The North Band accomplished all of this with only two weeks of practice after the district festival on March 8 in Ida. What makes this even more remarkable is the fact that at the district festival the band had only achieved a first division rating by the narrowest of margins, scoring two first division ratings and two second division ratings from the four judges," he explained.

The band received an A-plus in tone quality from three of the four judges and 16 A's out of a possible 20, the director said.

Kruse said Judge Larry Jones' final comment was, "This is the finest junior high band I have judged this year!" Judge John Whitwell, band director at Ann Arbor Huron, told Kruse: "Your band is an outstanding tribute to your community, your school system and especially to yourselves."

Kruse said: "I still can't believe that this could be possible under the circumstances."

"Only 3-5 bands usually receive straight ones at the state festival in a classification each year. When you consider that there are over 250 schools in a classification, this narrows it down quite a bit."

Kruse noted that each student in the North Symphonic Band would receive an A-plus for the marking period and an A-plus for the school year.

'On the job'

Students learn government

It was the students turn to prove they really are the leaders of tomorrow as they took over the reigns of government on Education Day, May 22, as part of the City of Romulus's observance of Michigan Week.

The students logged a busy day, starting with a 9:30 a.m. meeting with department heads, then a 10 a.m. meeting of departments. A 10:45 a.m. mock council meeting was next, followed by lunch.

Included on the students' mock council agenda was a request for a 5-mill tax increase to finance a recreation center, a request to let bids for four new fire stations, a request for an adult touch football league this fall and a request for 16 compact vehicles for each department in the city.

While their votes on the agenda had no effect on city government, the students were afforded the opportunity of learning what it takes to make appropriate decisions pertaining to the city and its residents.

Filling in for the day were Mark Sullivan as mayor, Kevin Williams as the city clerk, Mary Deverich as treasurer and Patty Smith, David Spitz, Joe Calderone, Francine Moore, Kevin Wilson, Robert Knight and Mario Olmos as members of the City Council.

Replacing department heads were Mark Inch, assessor; Linda Richardson, building; David Golden, code enforcement; Lori Willoughby, corporation counsel; Tim Brown, finance; Dan Sanchez, fire chief; Byron Butler, grants; Kathy Carroll, Help Center; Allen Dennett, industrial coordinator; Joyce Poole, library; Debra Meyer, personnel; Betty Good, public information; Robert Jakeway, public works; Donna Brazeau, purchasing, and David Starnes, recreation.

The student substitute was Lynette Edy.

The students attend Romulus Senior High School and are members of teacher Rod Hanna's government class.

Romulus Renaissance

Downtown is shaping up into a 'new village' look

Downtown Romulus is being reborn.

About a year ago a group of businessmen in Romulus saw a very definite need to revitalize the downtown section of Romulus. As a result the Romulus Central Business District Association (RCBDA) was formed and Bill Simonds of Bilmar's Supermarket was elected President, Joyce Palmer, Arc Realty Secretary, Ken Whise, Treasurer, Family Pharmacy and other members include Dong Baum, Baum Funeral Home, Tom Nappo, Landing Strip Lounge, Midge Prybyla, Chairperson Romulus Beautification Commission, Felix Rogalle, Attorney, Leo M. Kalota, Vice President, Manufacturers Bank, & Bill Cox, Farmers Insurance.

Romulus always had a strong viable business district located along Goddard between Wayne

Road and Five Points. The center of this business district is the old town hall at Goddard and Sterling and the history goes back to 1836 when the Village of Romulus was originally platted.

For many years Romulus was strictly a rural community, but recently emerged a large industrial and commercial center. This to a large part has been influenced by the Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport, one of the largest airports in the country, which is located in the middle of Romulus.

In connection with the changing status of the community, to an industrial, commercial center, the businessmen of downtown Romulus thought it necessary to revitalize the downtown section to provide better and more attractive shopping to the residents of a thriving and growing Romulus.

BUSINESS NEWS • ANALYSIS

In order to implement this plan the Romulus Central Business District Association along with the City of Romulus contracted with Christopher Wzacny and Associates, Inc., City Planners, to do a feasible study of the downtown area. Studies, of course, cost money, and approximately two-thirds of the funding was paid by the members of the RCBDA and one-third was paid by grant funds from the City. The study by Christopher Wzacny and Associates was recently completed and the gist of the report is that the downtown Romulus is in a strong position and, in fact, the market would indicate that more business space is warranted within the downtown area to serve the Romulus market.

Therefore, the recommendation of the planners was to implement the revitalization of the downtown area. The plan of Christopher Wzacny and Associates recommended that the theme of downtown Romulus would be "Old Romulus Village."

Further, that downtown Romulus would be provided with new streetscape plan. It is estimated that the streetscape would cost approximately $145,000.00, and be funded by grant money.

The downtown streetscape would call for new road surfaces, new sidewalks, trees, and planters, relocating Shook Road south of Goddard, and new street lighting.

This proposed streetscape plan will give downtown a new clean and bright image and a desirable place to shop.

In addition, each merchant at their own expense is to improve business establishment according to "Old Romulus Village Theme." The downtown Romulus plan and improvements by each individual business will achieve a distinctive downtown character, a renaissance, a re-birth.

Future plans call for expanding the membership of the RCBDA to include all businesses from Wayne Road along Goddard Road to 5 Points. It is felt that when the plans for the downtown area are complete and realized it will have a mushroom growth effect, and other businessmen in the community will also join the downtown businessmen in revitalizing the entire business community.

The RCBDA as a second phase project propose to revitalize the area between Wayne Road and C & O Railroad along Goddard Road. When this is accomplished it is believed that all businesses between the City Hall and Five Points along Goddard Road will enjoy more business activity and the community will be able to attract complimentary business into this section, which would provide more and better shopping facilities for the residents of Romulus, which is the businessmen's goal.

The signs of renaissance within the area is now taking place. The Senior Citizens building, which will have 125 units and house about 200 senior citizens is under construction at Bibbins and Shook.

The United Methodist Church is proposing to build a new church on Olive Street. Dennis Tsatsanifos, who is owner of Howard's Dairy Bar, is now in the process of remodeling that commercial establishment for a new restaurant. This building will have colonial architecture and be completely bricked and he proposes to call the restaurant Pullen's Corner, the original trading center of this community.

The renaissance, the new birth, is in process and while the success story is not yet complete the determination and enthusiasm of the businessmen of Romulus will make it happen.

The new Apollo Expediting, Inc. facility at 38500 Van Born Rd. in Romulus has won an award of Excellence in the Stran 1980 Building Design Achievement Awards competition here. The award was presented to the builder, Contemporary Structures, Inc., also of Romulus. It was selected from more than 150 worldwide entries by a team of designers and engineers. The BDAA competition encourages such outstanding design and functional use of metal building systems produced and marketed by the sponsor of the competition, National Steel Products Company of Houston, a wholly-owned subsidiary of National Steel Corporation of Pittsburgh.

Student drivers

You see them everywhere, those cars being driven oh so carefully by youngish looking students and with the warning "student driver" atop the vehicle.

It would be a big investment if the school district had to go out and buy a fleet of cars every few years to train more than 1,700 teen-agers who take driver training through the Wayne-Westland Community Schools each year.

That's why Manny Lentine, the business office administrator who arranges for bidding and buying in the district, thinks our local car dealers deserve a pat on the back.

"The automobile dealers in the area take part in our driver's education program by allowing us to use new cars at a minimal charge," he said. "It's certainly a good deal for the district."

Lentine recently traded in four "used" cars for four brand new vehicles from Mark Chevrolet. The dealership replaces their four driver's training cars every 6,000 miles, Lentine said, so students get nothing but the best equipment to learn on.

Mark Chevrolet owner and president Harry C. Demorest has been participating in the driver's training program for almost the entire 13 years it has been located in this area, and he replaces the four cars three times a year.

General sales manager of the dealership is John Fitzsimmons.

Other local dealerships that generously participate in the program by renting the district automobiles at a nominal fee are Ed Carpenter Dodge and Harold Dietrich Buick, both located in Wayne. They, too, regularly replace the automobiles that make possible the successful training of hundreds and hundreds of students from John Glenn and Wayne Memorial High schools, Lentine said.

And you can be sure they're the most carefully driven cars in town.

GARDENER'S NOTEBOOK

Seed packets can't tell you everything! From Michigan State University Extension horticulture specialists come tips on growing cole crops.

Where to plant: The plants in the cabbage family — cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and kohlrabi — do best in well drained soil and full sun. Before planting, work in 4 cups of 5-20-20 fertilizer per 100 square feet of soil. Avoid planting cole crops in the same spot year after year. They are subject to many root diseases that carry over in the soil from year to year. Crop rotation and use of treated seed are your best defenses.

When to plant: Plant transplants in the first three weeks of April in mid-Michigan. Seed also can be sown in the garden in late May or early June to produce a fall harvest. (Plant seed 3/4 inch deep in a carefully prepared seed bed. Transplant when plants have four to six leaves.) Note: Old plants of cauliflower and broccoli will produce small heads. Raise your own transplants or buy from a reputable dealer who can assure you that plants are no more than 8 weeks old.

How to plant: Space transplants 18 to 24 inches apart in rows 24 to 30 inches apart, except for kohlrabi, which should be 8 inches apart with 18 to 24 inches between rows. Plant about 1/2 inch deeper than plants were growing in containers. Use a high-phosphorus starter solution to get plants established quickly. If cutworms usually are a problem in your garden, it's a good idea to protect transplants with chemicals or cutworm collars. Root maggots also may be a problem. Especially if soil is high in organic matter, it may be wise to treat the soil with diazinon before planting. Follow label directions.

How to grow: Four to six weeks after transplanting, sprinkle a high-nitrogen fertilizer around plants. Water well during dry weather. Use shallow cultivation or mulch to control weeds. Watch plants closely for green caterpillars. Control them with Bacillus thuringiensis, a bacterial disease of caterpillars sold under the trade name Dipel and Thuricide. Cauliflower: To keep the sun from discoloring the curd and causing off-flavors, tie the leaves of cauliflower plants around the developing heads as soon as the heads become visible. (This is not necessary with purple or green cauliflower or self-blanching types.) Brussels sprouts: to promote even development of the sprouts, pinch out the growing tip of the plant after sprouts have formed all along the stem. If you don't do this, you'll have a few large sprouts toward the bottom and a lot of small ones toward the top of the stem. Also twist off the lower leaves to give the sprouts room to grow.

When to harvest: Broccoli: Harvest the main head when it reaches maximum size and before the buds begin to open and turn yellow. After the main head is cut, smaller side shoots will form. Harvest these, too. Cauliflower: Harvest when the head is about 6 inches in diameter. This will be three to four days after blanching in hot weather, 8 to 12 days in cool weather. Leaving heads covered too long will cause them to rot. Brussels sprouts: Harvest sprouts toward the bottom of the stem first. They should be an inch in diameter.

Our Heritage

A look at Van Buren Township's beginnings

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the conclusion of Cathy L. Horste's "A Look at Van Buren Township Beginnings", the first portion of a weekly series on the history of communities within Western Wayne County.

By CATHY L. HORSTE

As reflected in the pioneer listing, Henry Snow was Van Buren Township's first settler. He and his wife Sally came from Maine, stopping briefly in Detroit. They traveled up the Huron River by flat boat, bringing their food, cooking utensils, and other necessary items with them. Henry located 89 acres in Section 19, very near the present location of McDonald's restaurant on Rawsonville Road, and his patent was granted on Sept. 13, 1823. Snow first constructed a home and then a sawmill on the river bank. A small community known as Snow's Landing developed around the mill, but Snow sold his property and moved to Ypsilanti on June 21, 1825, leaving the settlement's growth to be managed by others.

It would appear that the most difficult part of obtaining a land grant was the actual travel to the area. Roads were impassable and often non-existent. More than one pioneer met his death along the way. Often a husband would set out alone, on horseback or on foot, and literally blaze a trail the last few miles. He would then build a rough shelter to protect himself from the elements and begin work on a more permanent home and the backbreaking chore of clearing the land. Word would then be sent back to the anxiously waiting family in the East. One such message read simply "Come on — the Indians are few, and the land needs plowed."

A heartbreaking story told in "History of Van Buren Township" by Samuel Robbe deserves retelling.

"Colonel Samuel McMath, who came here from Seneca County, N.Y., and settled in the Willow Run district, was just the type of citizen needed in the area at that particular time. Having met with financial reverses in the East, and having a family of nine children to support, he had ample incentive to clear his land and till the soil. Colonel McMath, who came here the year before looking for a homesite, was so impressed with the possibilities that he purchased the entire north half of Section 18. His patents were issued May 19, 1826. He brought seeds and tools with him, and upon this land in the summer of 1826, he erected a large log house, expecting to have his family join him as soon as the house was completed. His dreams were never to be realized however, as the house was scarcely completed when he fell ill and died of fever. His death occurred Sept. 6, 1826, and he was buried in an unmarked grave in Woodruff Grove near Ypsilanti. In the true pioneer spirit his family made the journey out here despite his death and occupied the home he had prepared for them. With nine children dependent upon her and literally clinging to her skirts, Mrs. McMath courageously started life anew in what was then an unbroken wilderness."

Word of the wonderful opportunities available in the Michigan Territory spread and soon whole family groups were making the journey. In the spring of 1825, Amariah and Betsy Rawson came to the township with their five daughters and new-born son. They traveled from New York in a covered wagon pulled by a team of oxen. Rawson purchased a part of Snow's Landing which eventually became known as Michigan City and later known as the village of Rawsonville. Rawson family descendants still reside in the area and proudly display the rocking chair Betsy brought with her in 1825 to comfort her infant son.

Historians have noted that not all of the township's land grantees did so with the intent of residing in and contributing to the community. Some patented hundreds of acres in the area solely to hold them for future sale at huge profits. Henry Burlingame patented 158 acres in 1825, Stephen G. Simmons patented 54 acres in 1825, Jacob Lazalere purchased 300 acres in 1827, and the Geddes brothers patented 87 acres in 1831. None of these men ever resided in Van Buren Township. In fact, it is highly doubtful if Henry Burlingame ever laid eyes on this area, somehow securing his land grants by mail. The Burlingame, Lazalere, Geddes and other properties were all sold within a few years, at a reportedly great profit, to late comers who missed out on the original grants.

According to local history, had Stephen G. Simmons settled on the 54 acres he patented in Section 21, rather than hold it for speculation purposes as he did, he would not have met the tragic end that came to him five years later. He preferred, however, to operate the bar and tavern in Wayne, purchased of George M. Johnson in 1826. According to the records he evidently was his own best customer.

Simmons, who came from New York, was a fine specimen of manhood, both physically and mentally. He made friends easily, and his tavern became one of the popular places of that time. This very popularity, however, contributed to his downfall. Too many convivial friends created an appetite for strong drink he could not resist. His drunken debauches became more and more frequent. When under the influence of liquor he became ugly and quarrelsome and because of his great strength, he was feared and avoided. Mopping up the bar room floor with his patrons was a favorite pastime when in this condition.

It was while under the influence of liquor that he carried a jug of whiskey to the bed chamber of his sick wife and tried to force her to drink with him. She drank what she could, hoping to satisfy and quiet him, but when she could finally drink no more, he became enraged and killed her with his fists as she lay in bed. He was arrested and taken to Detroit where, after a fair trial, he was sentenced to be hanged on Sept. 24, 1830.

His speedy conviction was brought about by the testimony of his two daughters who had witnessed the tragedy. On a scaffold erected on Gratiot Avenue, he paid the penalty for the crime he had committed. Simmons was so well known in this area that several residents journeyed to Detroit to witness the execution and several people made a day of it, packing picnic lunches and bringing the wife and children to Detroit to witness the hanging.

Five women were among those given early township land grants. This is amazing considering it was done back in the days when women often were considered to be property themselves and did not yet have even the right to vote. Margaret Patches was the first female to receive a grant, hers being dated June 1, 1833. She originally came from Vara, N.Y., and settled in the Tyler Street area. Second was Miss Sally Kipp, also of New York, who received a grant in Section 28 on Nov. 10, 1834. In 1835, three more women pioneers broke ground for homesteads — Eliza Smith on Jan. 19, Sarah Sterling on Aug. 19 and Helen Ferguson on Oct. 20.

The last known land grant issued in Van Buren Township was given to Lewis Spaw in 1848. He farmed his 40 acres in Section 16 until the outbreak of the Civil War, or Great Rebellion as it often was called. Spaw took up the Northern Cause and was killed in action at the Battle of Bull Run on Aug. 30, 1862, and buried on the field where he fell. Three sons were born to Lewis Spaw while he resided in the township, and all three also fought in the Rebellion. James, the oldest, was wounded at the Battle of Stone River, Tenn., Abraham was taken prisoner at Vicksburg in May 1863, and the youngest, Henry, was in Sherman's March to the Sea. All Four Spawns misrepresented their ages in order to serve. The sons actually were 16 or younger when inducted, and the father subtracted 10 years from his age to qualify.

The Erie Canal was opened in 1825, resulting in an influx of settlers coming to the area. In September 1836, Peter and Harriet Riggs left New York, intent on settling in Van Buren Township near Harriet's sister, Mrs. Clarissa Savage. Peter and Harriet, along with their nine children, traveled on the Erie Canal to Cleveland, then across Lake Erie to Gibraltar, then overland to the township, where they quickly located their relatives. Winter weather prevented Peter from immediately beginning work on the property he purchased just south of the Savage family homestead. The long winter months lay heavy on Peter, and he sometimes passed the hours in writing to relatives in New York. One such letter still in family archives tells of their difficulties:

"September last, I started with my family to move to the State of Michigan. I made a stop in Cleveland and stayed there something like 10 days, and our little girl, Esther Ann, and I were taken sick, but not confined to our beds. We got to Brother Minor Savage's the last of the month. Dunham was taken sick the day he got there. So, one after another, 'til all of the family were sick. I was confined but a short time. I cannot charge this sickness to Michigan since we have got better ...

"We have built a long house and got in it. We have got six or seven acres part chopped and cultivated to put into Spring crops ... As quick as navigation open, I think I shall come to see you. Harriet says that she would come with me, but said that she is so poor and needy that she cannot come. She has truly spoken for we are very needy.

"While we lay at Cleveland I had a line from Brother P.C. Riggs that you were at this house or in Horben Crick ... it cost us something like $70 to move our family to the Michigan. We are strangers in a strange land and it takes a great deal to support my family. Wheat $1.25 per bushel; corn from 75 cents to one dollar; pork from 7-10 cents per pound; venison 3-9 cents ...

Although times looked bleak for Peter in 1837, the family prospered.

Peter's persistence and determination would be an excellent model for any facing hardship in today's times. Crops were first harvested on the Riggs homestead in the fall of 1838, and a larger homestead was completed by 1850. Throughout the years, the Riggs family contributed generations of fine farmers, teachers, good citizens and patriots.

On April 12, 1827, Wayne County was divided into nine separate governmental units, and the townships of Detroit, Hamtramck, Springwells, Ecorse, Monguagon, Bucklin, Brownstown, Plymouth and Huron were organized. The Huron Township thus created included the area now known as the townships of Sumpter, Romulus, Huron and Van Buren. A census taken June 15, 1827, showed a total of 129 souls in the 4-township area on that date. Elections were held almost immediately following the census. Elected to serve were Prosper Lawrence, Supervisor; John R. Smith, Clerk; Warriner Corkins, Chauncy Morgan, George Jewitt, Assessors; Prosper Lawrence, Justice of the Peace; John F. Adkins, Constable; Samuel

Wing, Nathan Wilcox as Overseers of the Poor. Michigan was not yet a state when Van Buren Township was officially separated from Huron Township on Jan. 28, 1835. (Van Buren Township was named for Martin Van Buren, eighth President of the United States, serving 1836-1840. It was during Van Buren's term that Michigan was admitted to the Union.)

Schools fighting for survival

Schools are fighting for survival.

The Detroit Public Schools announced last week that they are $35 million in the hole; Inkster school officials say that a 4-mill renewal that will be on Monday's ballot could mean the difference between life and death; Plymouth-Canton schools are imploring voters to approve a pair of bond proposals, which, if defeated, could be ruinous to that school district.

There is a sense of panic when we discuss finances with local school officials. We know it. They know it. And the voters know it — that money is the bloodline to maintaining life in the schools.

A conservative attitude towards all of this would be to turn our backs and say, "The hell with it." We've paid our share. Our kids have had their education — now let those who have kids in school fork out the dough.

But increases, thanks to inflationary pressures in just about everything we do nowadays, have pinned school administrators to the proverbial wall. They are asked to cut and when they do, they become as unpopular as the plague.

Teachers are asking for "a larger share of the pie"; building maintenance costs are up immeasurably over the past few years; and student enrollment has been on a steady decline in many districts, which means less state aid. Employment is at an unprecedented level in the state, which also means less money in the state coffers, which also means less for schools.

Schools need qualified, intelligent men and women to guide them.

And those of us who would criticize school boards have an opportunity now to speak up.

'On Monday, thousands will be going to the polls to elect school board members and determine the fate of millages. We will not tell you who or how to vote.

But vote.
Your schools' survival depends on it.

Mother of handicapped child pleads her case

Submitted by RITA L. SEAL

One of the 300 Heartland mothers asks: Does Anybody Know or Care? What it's like to be the mother of a developmentally disabled child? It's a little like listening for your first born to cry in the night, and running for the bottle, and being afraid you'll break her. She's so tiny. Is she still breathing? That's what it's like only it does not stop — ever.

Sometimes you race into a small son's room because you hear a familiar noise. He's not just uncovered. He is a mass of jerking muscles, caught in a seizure. And you don't just cover him and go back to bed. You just wait and after awhile he is all right again — as all right as he will ever be.

Or maybe it's like teaching a baby a simple task, over and over again. Only my baby is six, or sixteen, and he learns slowly — if at all.

It's like looking for a toy that has to be soft, well made, washable, brightly colored and tossable and the saleslady asks "How old is the child?" What do you answer? He's 22 but not really — he's like a four year old. So she says she understands and you bring the gift home hoping he will like it and he drops it to the floor with no emotion on his face whatsoever.

He'd rather carry an old purse, or pull tiny threads out of whatever he gets his hands on, or roll small stones between his fingers. He may not like that either, you can't tell, but he does it all the time. It's his own particular little habit.

They all have their own little ways to make you know and come to love them. Sometimes you have to look for the pleasant side — or just love them anyway.

It's finding her bruised and knowing somebody must be told "be careful, she needs special care, she's different" and then grabbing the normal one to your bosom because she's got to feel special too.

It's waiting for words and only sounds come out — while all the other cousins grow and blossom, become bright young students — but you just wait, and wait, and hope forever.

Will he be ready for school? Maybe, but will they take him? Will he fit in? Will they teach other children not to push, punch or jeer? Not to play too rough. He does not even know when words are meant to cut him to the quick — but I do.

It's like walking a child in a wheelchair and someone stops to compliment you, but it's not "Isn't she pretty." It's more apt to be "Too bad, and she's such a beautiful child, how can the Lord permit such things?" Maybe to

The stock market may have crashed the year before, but 47 members of the graduating class of 1930 at Wayne High were looking optimistically toward the future. After all, in a few years a young Franklin D. Roosevelt would be put in the White House. Many of the members of that class, including Glenn Coleman (from left), Hank Goudy, Bernard Bird, Terry Worden and Serephia Moore will be on hand June 13th at the "Golden Anniversary" reunion to reminisce. The Other Side of the Meridian

Class of 1930

By TOM MOORADIAN
Acting Managing Editor

Where once the faces were smooth and youthfully effervescent, there are now the deep imprints of time.

Where once the voices were boastful, challenging, never indecisive, the talk is now thickly laced with "remembering back then" and reminiscing how it used to be.

There are always emotions involved when one thinks about "class reunions." To go or not to go? To display the bald pate or not? To show how time has taken its toll or not?

But, then, it's a chance to relive that past with those who shared it with you; to tell the stories that only those who grew up with you in high school can understand. The vaguely irrelevant experiences that meant and mean so much to you.

A class reunion — those thousands of kids who will be receiving their diplomas this week will never understand what it means to receive that most formal letter saying: "We're having a fifth, tenth, fifteenth, twenty-fifth and fiftieth class reunion until time passes by."

Grey-haired handsome women suddenly remember and take out portraits of other times; tall athletic men bent with time remember when they won the "big game," their first date and when gasoline was almost as cheap as a bottle of pop is today.

But some things haven't changed with the times.

Ask Glenn Coleman, president of the Wayne High graduating Class of 1930. His classmates are being honored at a "Golden Anniversary" reunion, Friday, June 13th, at the Wayne Community Center.

"We were in a depression then," said Coleman, "and we're in a depression now."

Coleman and his reunion committee, made up of Hank Goudy, ex Wayne fire chief, Bernard Bird, a retired Ford Motor Company employee, Terry Worden, who began his sales career at Mulholland's Department Store in Wayne, and, after traveling around the world came back and rejoined the store, and Serephia Moore (nee Rubel), a nurse, want their classmates — some 47 of them — to know that there's still time to get their reservations in to them.

If times have not changed, something has when it comes to public schools and education.

"We had a lot of respect for our teachers," said Mrs. Moore, whose adventures include crossing the Arctic Circle and panning for gold in Alaska. "They were strict, and looking back I can really appreciate what they did for us."

"They were tougher than hell," added Coleman. "When they said 'jump,' we jumped."

The 1930s...Depression. Rudy Valley, Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald. A young FDR. And gasoline — for one buck you could buy 12 gallons and get a case of pop for free!

Who ever said they weren't the 'good ole days'?

Reflections

'Answer or I'll shoot!'

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

I have always loved story-telling. I have loved to tell stories, and I have loved to listen to stories. My father and my mother were born story-tellers, and we used to spend a great deal of time around the dining room table listening to our father and mother weaving tales of their past.

One of my favorites was the story my mother used to tell of the first three years of her marriage when my dad got all excited about the new Homestead Act which had recently gone into effect in the state of Idaho. He bundled up his bride, brought a couple of extra horses, a wagon, on which he piled their household furnishings, and bumped along to Sunnydale, Idaho, a sagebrush community of about a dozen persons, tucked in the southern desert of Idaho, protected by high mountains on all sides.

"We were only sixty-some miles from home," my mother would say, "but it seemed that we had travelled to the moon, and I knew that I would never again see my loved ones."

My father staked his claim about seven miles outside of Sunnydale, and built a fine, large barn, and a little shack in which he carefully placed his bride, and went out to find some means by which he could put bread and butter on the table, since it was a cinch he couldn't grow it in that hot, sandy, waterless land.

He discovered there were several other scattered families, with many children, and so he became the 'school-bus'. Each morning he would go out to meet the dawn, hitch up his horses to the wagon, and begin his route, collecting little children for the tiny schoolhouse in Sunnydale. Between the time he deposited the kids, and the time he had to return to the school and get them, he again made the route, carrying hay and oats, flour and other sundries the homesteaders needed to survive. By the time each kid had been left on his doorstep, the moon would be high in the sky, and the sagebrush would be camouflaged by the darkness.

The young bride was desperately lonely, and the days were long. She became an expert horseman and spent many hours wandering around on the desert, atop her horse, carrying a shotgun which my father insisted she carry, and which she knew she would never be able to use.

The evenings were the worst. As the sun descended and the darkness filled the land, her heart would jump at the most familiar sounds, and an unfamiliar sound would send her into instant paralysis. She would try to alleviate the fear by baking exotic dishes for her bridegroom.

And while she stirred and baked and prayed, she would find herself sometimes filled with resentment, particularly if she allowed herself to imagine that her bridegroom might have been persuaded to stop at one of the homes and have something to eat or drink, which he usually did.

One night my father was over a half-hour late, and my mother had worked herself into a frenzy. The creepy, crawling things of the desert had made more noise than usual in their creeping and crawling, and once she had been sure she had heard the rattling of a rattlesnake close to the door. Her nerves were also fed by the knowledge that renegades sometimes roamed through the desert, invading the homesteaders' homes and terrorizing the homesteaders, particularly their wives and children. She had just opened the stove and shoved in more sagebrush and coal when she heard someone in the barn.

Grabbing the shotgun she opened the door and looked out into the darkness towards the barn.

"Charles," she called. "Is that you?"

There was no answer, but the rustling of moving bodies came loud and clear through the thin atmosphere.

"Charles," she called again. "ANSWER me or I will shoot."

This time she heard a soft "Nay." Pulling the gun to her shoulder, her finger found the trigger, and gritting her teeth she slowly pulled back. A loud shout from the gate caused her to drop the gun and fall into a fainting heap in the open door.

"Why were you going to shoot?" my father asked her after he had revived her and while he was holding her in his arms.

"I heard someone say 'nay', she answered, burying her head in his shoulders. A loud shout came from my father.

"Don't you know the neigh of a horse when you hear it?" he threw back his head and laughed.

"All I knew," my nineteen year old mother retorted, "was that it couldn't have been you. You never say no."

teach the world compassion, to give me courage, to test my faith, to inspire others. But nobody ever thinks of that.

It's sitting at the end of a long hard day and wondering about so many things. Will she never play with other kids, without her braces? She'll never dance — unless she can learn to walk. Oh well, maybe there's a special camp, but could we afford it, and could I stand to leave her there?

It would be good for both of us, but you check it out and hear "Sorry we can only take so many and they have to fit in — at least to some extent." Birthday parties and Mother's Day are especially rough. The birth is painful, prolonged, and it's hard to remember — and not remember.

Just get a babysitter and get out once in awhile. You'd like to go out with your husband and you have asked relatives too often already.

So you try baby sitters and you hear "He's too big and I'm afraid I couldn't handle him." Or "He's so fragile, what if he gets sick. I don't think I can be responsible. You do understand." And so you say "That's all right, I understand." IN A PIG'S EYE I DO. Why can't you be strong for a little while? Why can't you care? I could have everything ready, I could show you what he needs. It's not catching you know. But you don't say it, you just take it, because he's yours. But the hurt goes on.

And then there's the family tension. "He gets everything." "You only love him." "What about me, I was your husband before he came, but now you don't have time." "Do we have to drag him everywhere?" And eventually you part — but you and the special one have no choice. You go on, and on alone.

You talk to a caseworker and she advises "Take it easy. It's not your fault. You don't have to feel guilty. Try to relax more. You really should get out once in awhile." Or maybe she asks you to describe him. "Is he, would you say, a vegetable?" And you want to scream IF HE IS THEN I AM THE CRATE HE CAME IN! That hurts, but doctors and many other professionals use that term — yet they can think of a word for toothpaste 16 letters long.

And then there's that old line IT COULD BE WORSE YOU KNOW. Why is that expression always flung at you when you are feeling absolutely the very lowest you can get. Can you put back your head and say LIKE HELL IT COULD. I hurt, I hurt, and I can hardly hear this moment. RIGHT NOW IT COULD NOT BE WORSE.

And then one day he is just plain too heavy to handle. Or he is too destructive. Too disruptive of any type of family life, and you hear "Get him out of here." And where do you get him to? Somewhere, there are places, if you can think straight. So you keep trying and after red tape and due process the day you have always dreaded comes. "Yes, we will take him, but he will adjust better if you stay away awhile. And you want to demand HOW LONG IS AWHILE? Until he adjusts. HE WILL, BUT WHAT ABOUT ME! But he goes to live in a nursing home and it's not so bad, maybe not perfect, but not so bad really, because it is near and you can visit often.

So he's gone and you can go to work — putting your life back together. You go to work, and you work hard, you have to or you just go crazy. And someday you discover "I have not thought about her all day! What kind of a mother am I?" All those who said "I could never do that" will sound in your ears. So how do you learn TO FORGET, BUT REMEMBER NOT TO FORGET, ALL AT THE SAME TIME?

And after awhile you begin to realize it is for the best. He seems to like it there (if he can show any feelings at all). They love him, those dedicated nurses and aides (after they weed out those who cannot and do not belong in this kind of job). And you know the family love him in their own aching way, but there are wounds to be bound up. Hurts to heal. And little by little you learn to adjust, not accepting it, but learning to live with it.

And about that time you get a letter which you were expecting, if you were smart enough to join the small, struggling parent group. But which is a bolt out of the blue if it was all more than you could bear. THEY ARE GOING TO MOVE OUR "KIDS" 100 to 200 miles away. There are no beds closer to home and family. THEY ARE GOING TO MOVE HIM/HER away from those faces who feed, clothe, medicate and just plain love him, EXACTLY AS GOD MADE HIM, because he is a human being.

THAT'S WHAT IT'S LIKE! THAT'S WHAT IT'S LIKE TO HAVE A CHILD WHO IS JUST NOT QUITE LIKE THE REST OF US. Did God make a mistake when he gave us no extra hands, no harder hearts, no stronger stomachs, no less tears? Then you tell Him He goofed BECAUSE HE MADE US JUST LIKE THE REST OF YOU — A MOTHER.

If you feel you can sympathize with these parents, please contact Governor Milliken and ask him to authorize the purchase of the two Heartland Centres in Taylor and Wayne, Michigan. If you are a parent of a developmentally disabled child, and you would like to join in a study of WHAT'S IT LIKE, through articles such as the one above, please write to: A MOTHER, 19678 St. Louis, Detroit, Michigan 48234. Thank you for listening.

Aides plead for Heartland

EDITOR: We are only two of the many aides who work here at Heartland Centre, Wayne. We know what a parent of our kids must be going through at this time, because a lot of us feel the same pain as they do. Some people may think we only work with them, but it is more than just that. We have grown to love them.

When you come to work in a place like this, it is just like taking care of your child at home. You do everything for them as you do for your own. You bathe them, dress, feed them, play, and send some of them off to school on the bus.

We greet them when they return, we undress them, put them to bed, tell them goodnight, tell them you love them, and wake them up to a big "good morning".

So many little things you do for our kids mean so very much to them. They don't ask for anything big. Maybe you might hear one ask for a few straws to make things out of, or maybe one will ask for paper and pencil. What they really want is love. Is that too much for them to ask for? Why is it so many people don't care about their feelings. Don't people understand, and realize that they hurt and cry just as we do?

How can we just sit and watch our building close down on June 6, 1980, due to the fact that there are not enough funds to keep the place open?

How can we let the government waste so much of our taxes that we work so hard for, and not really have the say so about how it is being spent. Who is it that supports our government anyway?

Isn't it about time some is used on the poor people, and the ones who really need it more than some others that think they need it? After all who needs it more than the physically handicapped, and mentally retarded? After all it isn't their kids that are being pushed around, and maybe even going hungry. Do you think they care?

Hell no, they don't care. Do some people realize our kids never committed a sin, or a crime, and they are being put through total hell. It's high time our money is used here where it is really needed, instead of being sent to other countries!

About Memorial Day Parade

EDITOR: I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who helped make our Wayne-Westland Memorial Day Parade a success.

I felt it was a very nice sized parade and everyone who participated was very friendly. The police directing traffic were very firm in what they had to do, but were very courteous in helping us and answering questions.

I was only sorry about one thing I saw. Toward the end of the parade near City Hall some people just could not wait 10 more minutes till it was finished.

The people pushing along the side of the road to leave bumped some band players and their instruments. These people work hard to put their march on for the people and their instruments are expensive.

Watchers should have the courtesy to stay to the end. Again a special thank you to everyone for the enjoyable parade.

On politics and parade

EDITOR: I think that there is a time and place for all things so as I watched the Memorial Day Parade, and took part, as I have now for many years, I just had to express my opinion. There are those who would use the parade for political gain. How could they? There are 364 days that could be used for campaigning. And during the parade to honor our fallen heroes we had people asking us to vote for this person or that!

Let's all reserve this day in honor of our loved ones and the men and women that gave their lives for our country.

Dire need for blood

EDITOR: This letter is my appeal for a real need in our community. About 1000 pints of blood is required daily to meet the needs of residents in southeastern Michigan. These needs are currently in jeopardy of not being met.

The reasons are mostly related to the economic conditions that are affecting everyone. Factory law-offs have decreased or eliminated the regular collection at in-plant donation sites. This shifts much of the burden of providing donor sources to private individuals and to churches, schools and other groups that have retained their membership.

The problem is that unless more groups and individuals give blood on a regular basis, the blood demand may not be met. Currently only 3 percent of eligible donors actually do give blood.

The church to which I belong, St. Richard Catholic Church, with the help of St. Thomas a Becket Catholic Church (Canton), Kirk of Our Savior Presbyterian Church and Holy Cross Lutheran Church sponsored a Blood Drive on May 19th. We donated 117 pints of blood. It's not nearly enough to meet the daily need of 900-1000 pints, but we tried to help. And every little bit helps.

I am asking anyone who can spare an hour to help his community and give blood. You can donate whole blood every eight weeks, so even if you've given before, maybe it's time you considered it again. Appointments can be scheduled daily, Monday through Saturday, by calling the Dearborn Donor Center, 274-3900, or the Livonia Donor Center, 422-2787. And ask a friend to come along.

If you are a member of a church, civic, or social group and can organize a Blood Drive, contact Red Cross Representative Cliff Taylor at 274-4004 for more information and assistance.

Don't let us get so wrapped up in our own personal problems that we forget our community needs. We all rely on the support of others. Please put forth that little extra effort and be a blood donor.

A town 'divided'

EDITOR: Once again our town has experienced the form of being split into sections, and by individual factions.

May 24th was proclaimed American Legion Open House Day by the National Commander. On this special day, all Legion Posts doors were to be open to the public, and communities.

Well, you WAYNE Post III did do that. But, nobody came, not even any of our elected or concerned city officials! Some 20 dedicated members spent 4-hours, waiting for someone to show up. It showed that Wayne isn't great, like the bumper stickers you see mentioned. When you travel you see slogans that tell why a place has a meaning for existing. Our city mentions it is great, People, Pride and Progress. People, yes we have, all ages and state wide immigrants; Pride, you have to look at yourself once, and say do I really care about the place which I reside in. Do you come out and get involved as a resident that cares? Progress, is just what you see. A bare downtown, empty store businesses, and a city government that tells you, what's good for you, rather than being there to represent you.

And if you don't believe this, you haven't been talking to your neighbor. Is he too good for you, or are you too good for him. Also our official Town Newspaper is a bit partial too. That's why the Wayne circulation isn't as great as it could be. We want news about our town. They ask us what we think. Let's give them two cents, and a ear and eye. It's a right and a duty as a citizen. I, as a resident, a while back, got our City Council to agree, that little people should have an opportunity to be heard. It was published in this newspaper. But nothing has come of it. Wayne has a problem.

Food, clothing aided victims

EDITOR: We would like to take this opportunity to extend our thanks to all the people who helped us by collecting money, and donating clothing or food for the Kalamazoo tornado victims.

It is really gratifying to know that even in these hard times, people are not afraid to dig a little deeper and help out someone who is less fortunate. Again, we would like to say thanks.

Van Buren fish story

EDITOR: Does anyone really believe that the Van Buren Twp. board cares whether the residents want fishing stopped along Belleville bridge?

They didn't care about how residents felt about hunting on Belleville Lake, and in this case there was not one voice in the township raised against hunting on the lake.

Township residents haven't been and are not now fishing in the area in question. It's quite obvious the township or at the very least the Supervisor is afraid of the NAACP.

Another HUD experience

EDITOR: I received your newspaper here in Florida and was quite interested in your article on HUD.

Here is my experience with HUD.

HUD repossessed the house next door to me. I had a broker inquire about buying it and was told the house would not be on the market for 6 to 8 months. I then made an offer of $13,000 as is.

The house stood vacant for about 6 months. Then the weather got cold and all the plumbing froze up and broke.

Vandals broke the windows, and the rain and snow damaged the walls and floors.

Then HUD paid a Contractor $7500 to repair the house. The contractor tore out many things that did not need replacing and so padded his bill.

After the house was repaired, I again inquired about buying it and was again told the house would be on the market in 6 months or more.

As the house stood vacant, vandals once more broke the windows resulting in more damage to the inside of the house and repairs at a cost of $2500. So I once more tried to buy it only to be told it would be on the market in 60 to 90 days.

About 60 days later I inquired about buying it and was told it had been sold a month before. The buyer was an investment broker who had a friend who worked for HUD. The selling price was $13,000. So you see it cost HUD $10,000 to resell the house.

So I would never deal with HUD as I cannot unwind the miles of red tape and 2 years of waiting to find out if I will be able to buy it at all.

Clearing up some points

EDITOR: Some members of the Westwood Community School Board have informed me that a person running against me in this year's election made an untrue statement about me at a recent meeting of the board, which I would like to correct.

This person allegedly stated that I had voted to remove one mill from the schools and transfer it to be used for county operating purposes. This is not only untrue but would be impossible to do. Only the Tax Allocation Board can allocate the millage collected on the county level. Of the 15 mills that can be levied without a vote of the people, the county receives 6.07 mills as its set share. In 1964, the people voted an additional 1 mill for county operating expenses, and they have periodically approved the extension of this 1 mill, the last time being in 1978. (Four years ago, the people approved 1/2 mill for the construction of a new jail, and this revenue cannot be used for any other purpose.)

In accordance with state law, the Tax Allocation Board allocates the balance of the 15 mills to school districts, townships, the Intermediate School District and the Wayne County Community College. The Board of Commissioners cannot make any changes in these allocations. (Cities levy their own millage, up to 20 mills without a vote of the people.)

The Board of Commissioners does appropriate the revenue raised from the 6.07 mills, plus the 1 extra mill mentioned above voted by the people, for the county operating expenses. It should be mentioned here, however, that the Board of Commissioners only has discretionary control of 10-15 percent of this revenue, because 80-85 percent of our budget is mandated — either by the State Constitution, state statutes, court awards or arbitration awards.

Thank you for allowing me to set the record straight on this very damaging and untrue statement allegedly made about me.

About winners and losers

EDITOR: I do not choose to be a common man. It is my right to be uncommon - if I can. I seek opportunity - not security. I do not wish to be a kept citizen, humbled and dulled by having the state look after me.

I want to take the calculated risk: to dream and to build, to fail and to succeed. I refuse to barter incentive for a dole. I prefer the challenges of life to the guaranteed existence; the thrill of fulfillment to the stale calm of Utopia.

I will not trade freedom for beneficence nor my dignity for a handout. I will never cower before any master nor bend to any threat.

It is my heritage to stand erect, proud and unafraid, to think and act for myself, enjoy the benefit of my creations and to face the world boldly and say, this I have done.

All this is what it means to be an American.

This letter is my answer to an article published in Wayne Eagle on or about March 28th about being a loser.

Tribute to a bride

Silver is a very precious commodity. The price of the white ductile metallic element, used in making mirrors, coins, ornaments and tableware, has skyrocketed in the past few months.

Therefore, I guess it is particularly fitting that 25 years of marriage should be labeled the "Silver Anniversary." That's the stage in life that Pansy and I have reached this week. This week we celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary and don't ask me where the time has flown.

"You're supposed to get something silver for your 25th wedding anniversary and all I got was a lot of silver hairs," she lamented this week. Silver threads among the gold, I believe the poet wrote. I guess that's better than losing them altogether.

Some readers have mentioned that "Tribute to a Bride" is my most touching column. The traditional wedding month of June is here. With that in mind, I'd like to dedicate this column to all those on the threshold of marriage as well as those who already enjoyed its blessings.

Twenty-five years ago this Wednesday — June 4, 1955 — I anxiously stood beside the minister and watched my lovely bride-to-be walk slowly down the center aisle.

In pure white flowing gown and crown, radiantly beautiful as only a bride can be, she joyfully approached the altar where we would soon be joined in eternal union. Familiar strains of the wedding march filled the hushed sanctuary as the organist's nimble fingers danced over the keys.

Handkerchiefs dabbed away reluctant tears. Teenage girls smiled expectantly at each other and craned their necks to catch a glimpse of the slowly moving white-clad princess.

This princess was dressed in white — a tribute to the purity she brought to our marriage — and in her hand she held a fragrant bouquet of flowers. The bouquet was like a magic wand that has blessed these married years with happiness.

Twenty-five years ago this week — it seems but yesterday — I took my wife "til death us do part." She's brought to my life a gentle touch and guiding hand to help raise three grown sons. Besides her sweet charm and efficiency, her usual tranquil nature is subdued by life's compelling needs.

Whatever she touches seems to bear the distinct mark of success. A glowing light among so many darkened embers in the world's fireplace, she's unique in so many ways. To my sometimes faltering, unsteady steps she's given moral and spiritual strength — a hand on my shoulder that's provided more courage than a thousand friends.

Not only did she bring to me a sweet young maiden pure — she's kept her youthful charm and innocence despite the rigor and demands of passing years. She proved that girls need not be mauled or pawed like clothes at a bargain sale. No trial marriage was necessary — or experimentation of living together outside the bounds of decency.

And yet she has complete freedom. Freedom that is spawned from liberty born of love. Truth shall set us free, and she moves with unbridled enthusiasm as one who knows and loves the truth.

As fresh as the morning dew or spring's first rose is her ready smile and gracious heart. My wife, Pansy, was the first flower child I ever knew and she's adorned my life with the fragrance of a thousand rose gardens.

On our silver anniversary I quote the words of the poet Roy Croft to express my feelings of gratitude:

"I love you, not only for what you are, But for what I am when I am with you. I love you, not only for what you have made of yourself, but for what you are making of me."

I love you because you are helping me to make of the lumber of my life — Not a tavern, but a temple; out of the works of my every day not a reproach but a song.

I love you because you have done more than any creed could have done to make me good, and more than any fate could have done to make me happy.

You have done it without a touch, without a word, without a sign. You have done it by being yourself. Perhaps that is what being a friend means, after all."

Ask Carol Premo

Breastfeed or not?

By CAROL PREMO, PhD.

DEAR CAROL,

I am about to have a baby (in August). I have given it a great deal of thought and I want to breastfeed my baby. I would really like to do this but I need to talk to someone about it.

My mother says I'll be sorry if I do this, that my breasts will sag. My doctor at the clinic brushed my questions off saying I should just go ahead and do what comes naturally.

I really would like to do this, but I have lots of questions and worries. What do you think I should do? Is breastfeeding really a good idea?

Mother to Be

DEAR MOTHER,

Breastfeeding is a very individual thing and should be decided on an individual basis. There are many different variables to be considered. The La Leche League is an organization dedicated to breastfeeding. I would suggest that you contact them with your questions. I think that you will find them most helpful to you.

DEAR CAROL,

I have a problem that I cannot solve. When I make a mistake, like saying the wrong thing, breaking something, forgetting something — I think I behave appropriately — say I'm sorry, try to make amends. But,

I have been receiving a lot of feedback that I do not really seem very sincere — that I do not appear truly sorry. Short of sack cloth and ashes how do you indicate a mistake really does make you feel sorry?

Sorry

DEAR SORRY,

Very frequently when a person makes an error or does something which they consider to be wrong or inappropriate, it increases their sense of inadequacy which in turn creates a feeling of anxiety. A very common mask for anxiety in our society is a smile. If you think about it you will probably be able to recall someone smiling or giggling during what you would consider very inappropriate times.

For example, it is not unusual at all for someone to giggle or laugh when someone falls or gets hurt, even though they might not consider it funny at all.

Is it possible that you may be defending against your sense of embarrassment at having done something incorrectly by indulging in this particular behavior?

One of the primary methods of determining how an individual feels is by facial expression. Perhaps you can try to be more conscious of your facial expressions and have them match your words.

Try it and see if it doesn't help.

Know your state law

(This is one in a series of public service articles explaining, in general terms, a provision of Michigan law. Individuals who wish to determine the effect of any law on their private legal affairs should consult with a private attorney.)

By ATT. GEN. FRANK KELLEY

As good weather develops, Michigan consumers can expect to encounter more door-to-door salespersons offering a variety of goods and services. Home improvements, encyclopedias, pots and pans, magazine subscription and other merchandise will be readily available.

Although there are many honest door-to-door sellers, too often consumers are subjected to high pressure or deceptive sales practices. Customers also may be charged high prices or sold poor products.

Under state and federal law, consumers have a "cooling off" period of 3 days or more contracted in the home, either in person or over the phone.

The "cooling off" period gives a buyer the opportunity to cancel the contract by midnight of the third business day after the sale and receive a full refund of all the money paid or property traded in.

The seller is required to notify the consumer that the "cooling off" period exists. The seller also must provide two copies of a Notice of Cancellation form which contains details for cancelling the sale.

To cancel a contract, a consumer must notify the seller in writing within the 3-day period. However, if the seller has failed to satisfy the legal notice requirements, the contract may be cancelled even after the 3-day period and a verbal cancellation must be accepted.

There are some exceptions to the "cooling off" period. It does not apply, if the consumer requests goods or service without delay because of an emergency. Other incidents in which the cooling off period does not apply include:

- Sales made after the consumer has visited the seller's business;
- Sale of insurance by a licensed insurance agent;
- Sale of services by a licensed real estate broker or salesperson; and
- Sale of agricultural or horticultural equipment and machinery which is demonstrated to the consumer by the seller.

A practice of misleading consumers or failing to honor cancellations can result in my seeking a $25,000 fine against the seller under the Michigan Consumer Protection Act.

Complaints should be filed with Attorney General Frank J. Kelley, Consumer Protection Division, 670 Law Building, 525 W. Ottawa St., Lansing 48913.

License plate design sought

Secretary of State Richard H. Austin has invited public suggestions for design and color of the state's 1984 license plate. The 1984 plate, to be produced for sale in 1983, will be used on Michigan vehicles for four years.

"Our objective," he said, "is to increase the legibility and visibility of the plate without incurring additional costs, by increasing the height of the letters and numbers and slightly modifying the slogan."

Suggestions should be forwarded by July 1 to License Plate Committee, Secretary of State, Lansing 48918.

Wayne captures Class A district title

Zebras will play for regional crown at Wyandotte

Rained-delayed for nearly an hour, Wayne Memorial didn't let the inclement weather dampen their spirits or their bats on Saturday at the district baseball playoffs.

Coach Jim Chronowski and the Zebras picked up a coveted Class A District baseball championship at Ann Arbor Huron. The victory also is their ticket to Saturday's regional tournament at Wyandotte Memorial Stadium.

"Because of Saturday's rains a lot of districts were forced to postpone their games," said Coach Chronowski. "We were among the fortunate ones. And I have to say that the grounds crew over there (at Huron) did an exceptional job of getting the field ready under all of the adverse conditions."

Wayne buried Ann Arbor Pioneer 11-4 in their playoff debut to advance to the finals where Bedford, winner over Belleville (see related story) was waiting for them.

In the finale, Chronowski called upon southpaw Larry Reid to do the job. And Reid, with the help of reliever Mike Blair, responded with a 5-3 victory, padding his personal pitching record to 5-1 on the year.

Reid, in his 4 1-3 innings on the mound, fanned six, walked two, and gave up two of the three hits. Blair notched four strikeouts, walked three in earning the save.

Wayne got to loser Mark Zielinski for two runs in the first inning as Blair and Danny Perusse walked. But Larry Reid's fielder's choice erased Perusse, however, a wild peg to first enabled Blair to round third and score. Ken Browe then sliced a run-scoring single to lift the Zebras into the lead, 2-0. Both Reid and Zielinski gathered goose eggs until the sides exchanged three runs in the fifth.

Wayne gathered theirs on a single by Blair, a walk to Perusse, a fielder's choice that loaded the bases. Then, Browe again came through and laced a two-run single, giving Wayne a 4-0 lead.

Gene Piscopink's sacrifice fly drove in Wayne's final run of the tournament.

In the 11-4 pastings of Pioneer, Perusse went the distance, struck out eight and walked three in pitching a three-hitter. Loser Steve Wild gave up 13 hits, three to Blair who also had two RBIs, and two each to Browe, Piscopink and Joe Guetta, who had also scored twice.

Wayne rode Perusse's arm into the districts. In the pre-district warm-up, the 5-10, senior hurler stopped a highly-touted Howell, 3-2. He gave up seven hits, struck out one walked four but needed help from Blair in the seventh to win it.

Blair preserved the victory and got Perusse out of troubled waters in the seventh when Danny put two men aboard, with one-away Blair took over and faced Howell's No. 4 batter. He struck him out, and got the last batter on a fly ball.

Perusse helped his cause with a triple and single. Browe managed to come up with run-scoring singles, each time with Perusse aboard.

Wayne will take an 18-6 won-lost over-all record to the regionals.

DOUG TOLSON

Tolson wins state title

Like a Hollywood script, the ending was incredible. And they're still talking about the way — the miracle — Wayne Memorial's premier distance runner, Doug Tolson, won the state title in the 2-mile.

Tolson, considered the finest distance runner in the area's history, had his hands full Saturday afternoon at the state finals staged at Housman Stadium in Grand Rapids.

With approximately 50 yards to go to the finish line, Andy Dillon, Detroit Catholic Central's outstanding runner, had put some 15 yards between him and Tolson. It looked as if Dillon had the upset of the championships in the making.

Suddenly, as if Dillon hit an invisible wall, the Catholic Central runner "collapsed physically". Tolson breezed past him to the wire and the victory.

Dillon recovered in time to trot in third, after East Lansing's Steve Underwood also had passed him. Tolson's 9:13.8 — a school record — was posted as the winning time. Underwood was clocked in 9:17.

Dillon had never beaten his arch rival, Tolson, in an outdoor meet, but he was able to defeat him in indoor trials.

"It was one of the strangest races I've seen for a long time," said Wayne Coach Ernie Righetti. "I think that Dillon's strategy was to get away from Doug, but he paid the price by tightening up at the end."

Tolson's victory will give him an opportunity to compete over the weekend in the Midwest "Meet of Champions" which will be held in Indiana and pit the top prep athletes from Ohio, Illinois, and Michigan.

Wayne also received a ninth place in state competition in the pole vault when Ken McGuire cleared 13 feet, 3 inches.

Northwest Suburban track

Champs lose title to North

It went right down to the wire in the Northwest Suburban Conference track & field title chase, and Westland John Glenn, the defending champ, came up short.

Glenn handed over the team championship to undefeated North Farmington who edged the Westlanders 125 to 119½ in the final standings.

"I felt generally our team performed well," said Glenn coach Barry Basel, "but a number of things contributed to our defeat. I wouldn't want to pinpoint each and every place where we had let-downs, but when you come within six points of winning, that's not bad."

Glenn claimed the league champ and the runner-up in the discus. Bill Dye emerged with the winning toss of 156 feet, 8 inches, to pick up the gold. Teammate Gary Black was second with a 143 feet, 8 inch effort.

Livonia Franklin, which finished third in the final standings, had a pair of champs in the pole vaulter Grant Gordon and two-miler Paul Colburn. Gordon's vault of 13 feet equalled that of Glenn's Mike Dzurgot but the Livonian was awarded the gold because of a lesser amount of misses.

Colburn covered the 2-mile in a respectable 9:42.7 to beat Glenn's Dale Stephens to the wire.

Notes and quotes

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Notes to a Sports Editor from area coaches and fans:

FROM MICHAEL COLLETTA, Belleville High head football coach: "Just wanted our football fans to know that the proprietor of the Guys & Dolls Beauty Shoppe, Louise Leonard, is donating all of Tuesday's proceeds to the Belleville football program. We're going to label this one the 'Hair Bowl', so if there's anyone out there who needs a haircut or shampoo, the Guys and Dolls is the place to be on Tuesday."

FROM JIM CHRONOWSKI, Wayne Memorial head baseball coach: "We may not have drawn many pro scouts to our games this year, but this team has surprised a lot of people. And, with the exception of maybe Danny Perusse, who's hitting the ball at a .460 clip, there really isn't any what we call draftable players. But this team is a team — and that's why they're winning." Wayne takes an 18-6 record into Saturday's regional championship. Chronowski revealed that his scorebook has "only four sheets left in it." That, according to our calculations, is enough — four pages to the Class A state championship game.

FROM ROD HANNA, Romulus High head cage coach: "Darryl Lewis has signed with Northwood Institute to play for Coach Pat Miller's team. Darryl has never played on a losing team since the seventh grade and he has tremendous potential, leaps higher than his 6-1 frame would indicate and is an excellent shot." Few will forget Lewis's one-man show against Ypsilanti in the district finals last season. Lewis pumped in 23 of his 33 points in an 8-minute span of the last quarter and almost pulled out the district championship over the highly-favored Braves.

Northwood, incidentally, is where ex-Inkster High great, Fred Smiley, won All-American cage honors. The Northmen are affiliated with the Great Lakes 8 Conference and Miller's people recently built a new gymnasium.

FROM GEORGE ROBERTS, Little League baseball coach in Van Buren: "The county has built a fence alongside the little league diamond behind North Junior High and everytime the kids hit a foul ball the ball is difficult to retrieve because there's barbed wire atop of the fence. The county doesn't realize that it's costing our league a lot of money because we can't get the balls back. Last week in one game alone the kids smacked 13 foul balls. If the county would only agree to build a gate with a lock and hand over the key, it would solve us a lot of headaches." And save a heap of money.

FROM A FAN IN ROMULUS - We're very happy to see that Johnny Long has not forgotten his home town after turning pro. (Long was recently voted the Detroit Pistons' MVP.) He's been volunteering his time to sign autographs and recently appeared at the Wick Elementary School Fair. Romulus is proud of Johnny Long."

FROM JIM MCPARTLIN, Swim coach at Wayne Memorial: "If you're between the ages of 6 to 18 and like to swim, the Dolphins want to hear from you. Bring your towel and swim trunks to Wayne High pool at 4 p.m., June 5th for tryouts. If you can't make it then, swimmers should attend the outdoor practice on June 15th at noon at Attwood Pool." Jim is making sure that he has a winning team lined up for him in the future. He and his wife are the proud parents of their second child, Jamie, a fair-complexioned, blond-haired girl. It's their second girl, Jill — No. 1 — is now 23 months old.

Tigers are 3rd in Sub-7

It was a disappointing ending to a perfect dual meet track season for Belleville.

Coach Dave Medley and his Tigers stumbled in the final event of the Suburban 7 Conference Championships and consequently lost their chances of winning the league title.

Belleville took an untarnished 6-0 dual meet record into the league meet and finished third behind Edsel Ford and Dearborn, whose 95 points each enabled them to share the title.

Belleville wound up with 87 points good for third, followed by Plymouth Salem (69), Livonia Bentley (35), Trenton (34), and Allen Park (6).

"We didn't finish the mile relay because of an injury to our anchorman," Medley pointed out. "It was a heartbreaker for us. But it happens."

Belleville managed to win five titles with senior Scott Straight earning two golds in the hurdles. Straight capped his prep career with a first in the highs (14.8) and a victory in the lows (39.5).

Belleville's Bob Shallow proved he is the best vaulter in the conference this year by clearing 13 feet, 7 inches. Mike Sampson was crowned king of the long jumpers by virtue of his 20 feet, 6 inches leap.

The Tiger foursome of Brian Martin, Jeff Patterson, Charles Blackmon and Keith Gates was declared the best half-mile relay team in the league. They were clocked at 1:31.8.

Belleville placed second in three events as Jeff Patterson finished with the silver in the high jump (6'2"); Chris Larcinese was runner-up in the discus (141'11") and Lonnie Renfro crossed the finish line second in the 440-yard dash (51.1).

Belleville brought the curtains down to the dual meet season by polishing off arch-rival, Ypsilanti, 75-57, for its eighth and final win.

It was the first time in recent years that the Tigers had completed the dual meet year with an undefeated season.

and, after Wendt notched a strikeout, Steve Droz was safe on an error. Wendt then issued a walk to Bob Nolan to load the bases. Larry Rodder singled, driving in the tie-breaker (3-2), then Herb McManaway drilled a Wendt fastball for a triple, lifting the Patriots to a 6-2 lead. The DCC pitcher managed to get Doug White to ground out, but Dave Rettig also hammered a three-base hit, scoring McManaway.

Franklin scored again in the fifth when Check walked, but he was erased on Bob Sinclair's fielder's choice. With the hit-and-run on, Droz doubled scoring Sinclair with what proved to be the final run of the game.

The state champs got on the board in the first inning, but Franklin tied it up in the bottom of that frame on a leadoff walk to Nolan who stole second and third. After two were out, White drew a base on balls and a pair of throwing errors paved the way for two unearned runs.

To qualify for the finals Franklin had to get past Bishop Borgess, a team that had beaten the Patriots earlier in the campaign. Southpaw Brad George went the distance, gave up three hits, walked seven and fanned an equal number of Spartans in chalking up a 7-2 victory.

Laser Tom Heathfield lasted until the third after giving up his fifth run. McManaway led Franklin's 11-hit assault with three hits, including an RBI double while White chipped in with two hits and a double. Rettig, Sinclair each had two hits and Droz' base hit — a double — drove home two runs.

Earlier in the week, Franklin managed to salvage a share of the Northwest Suburban Conference title by whipping Redford Thurston 6-3. While Franklin disposed of Thurston, North Farmington got past Garden City East 5-2, forcing the Livonians into a co-championship. Both Franklin and North finished with 8-2 records.

George again was given the job in the must game against Thurston. He yielded three hits and walked four while striking out 12. Thurston's three runs were unearned.

Franklin received two hits from Droz who accounted for two RBIs, while Nolan bagged three hits batted in and had one of the Patriots' five hits for the game.

Franklin will carry a 16-7 over-all league record into next Saturday's regional tournament.

Franklin whips state champ to advance

Scharf's 6-hitter humbles Detroit Catholic Central, 8-2

In competitive sports, is there anything sweeter than revenge?

Last year Detroit Catholic Central knocked off one of the finest Livonia Franklin baseball teams in that school's history, and DCC went on to capture the Class A state title.

The two teams met again on Saturday. The scene was the district finals but this time Coach Gerry Cullin and his Patriots got the message across. Franklin avenged last year's loss, 8-2.

jolt the Doughboys and district championship. The victory also enabled Franklin to qualify for Saturday's Regional Championships at Hazel Park.

"It was fantastic," Coach Cullin said. "The kids played beautiful ball. We've been waiting for this one. It was just terrific."

Franklin erupted for five runs in the second inning to build up a 7-2 lead. The Detroiters couldn't muster a counter offensive after that inning. Franklin got to DCC starter, Greg Wendt, for three of their seven hits in the second frame.

There will be competition for junior boys and girls, men and women, along with mixed teams. In order to enter participants must fill entry forms with the recreation department before 5 p.m., June 26.

There is a $4 entry fee for each team and each division one registers to compete in.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Jeff Holderness, tournament director, at 397-1000, extension 211. The parks and recreation department offices are located at 1150 S. Canton Road.

The Wayne Parks and Recreation Department is organizing several tennis leagues including a "Women's Wayne World Tennis League," Teen League, Men's League which is scheduled to get underway on June 16.

Women living in the Wayne-Westland School District interested in playing on the tennis league should register at the Community Center. The league is limited to the first 20 women signed. The registration fee is $10.00 which takes care of league shirts and awards. This league will be played Tuesday mornings at Attwood courts from 9 a.m. to 12 noon beginning June 3rd. Participants should have some

"TRIM YOUR MEAT BILLS WITH LEAN BOB EVANS SAUSAGE"

If the high cost of beef is cutting into your budget, Bob Evans Farms has a fresh idea for your lunch or dinner.

Switch from ground beef to lean Bob Evans Farms Pork Sausage.

Of course, you could switch to just about any pork sausage and save money. Because pork is less expensive than beef.

But Bob Evans Pork Sausage is meatier than most. Because it's leaner than most. In fact, we use only enough fat to bring out the fresh farm taste.

And while other pork sausage is usually made from the trimmings, we make ours from the best cuts of pork. Including choice fresh hams, shoulders and tenderloins. So it cooks up plump, tender and delicious. Not greasy.

So switch from beef to lean Bob Evans Pork Sausage, and trim your meat bills. Without cutting down on quality or taste.

WE DO IT RIGHT.

BPW, Rotary Clubs sponsor BHS juniors to Girls State

Julie Frey of 11875 Quirk Rd., Belleville, has been selected by the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club (BPW) to attend the 40th session of Girls State on the campus of Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant. The session, under the direction of the American Legion Auxiliary, will operate for nine days June 14-22. Julie was chosen from the junior class at Belleville High School where she is an outstanding athlete in track and field. Her skill in running hurdles and doing high jumps has won her recognition in the Michigan Junior Athletes Amateur Athletic Union. This is her first step in progressing toward the Olympic contest.

Her hobbies are painting writing and an appreciation of wild life. She is interested in becoming either a forest ranger or a psychiatrist. After graduation she hopes to attend the University of Michigan at Dearborn. At the present time she is employed at the Van Buren Convalescent Home where she works about 37 hours each week.

Another Belleville High School junior Brenda Goodman of 14315 Sheldon Rd., Belleville, has been selected by the Belleville Rotary Club to attend the upcoming Girls State session.

An active member of her class, Brenda serves on the BHS Advisory Council and also works at Tyler Elementary School in the pre-school program. She has a skill for writing poetry and has had several poems published. One appeared in the Seventeen magazine and others have been printed in the school magazine, Write-For-Flight.

Brenda is interested in the disadvantaged person and would like to become a physical therapist. She is a volunteer with the Jacettes (Junior Girls to Assist Jaycees) and is also employed by the Italian Bread Factory at Lakewood Shopping Center.

Girls State was established in 1941 to give 11th grade girls a practical experience in the importance of self-government, as operated in Michigan and the United States.

Each of the 504 girls attending this session, is assigned to a mythical political party, County and City. The citizens nominate and elect various city, county and state officials. They are instructed in the duties of the various public offices. They learn the function of these offices, including the power and limitations of the Supreme Court, legislature and other divisions of government.

Two girls will be selected from Michigan Girls State to attend Girls Nation in Washington D.C. at the American University in August.

The American Legion Auxiliary Unit endorsing Julie and Brenda, is Huron Valley No. 231, located in New Boston, Mi.

This is the second year Belleville High School has had representation at Girls State.
